Benefits: Prevention Agenda Tracking Indicators – State Trend and Most Recent Year Data

Benefits:

- The Prevention Agenda 2013-2017 is the state's Public Health Improvement Plan for the next five years that includes the state's five public health priorities.
- These datasets provide interested parties, including state and local health partners and the general public information about the most recent data points and trend data for the 20132017 Prevention Agenda tracking indicators and the objectives/targets that state and communities are working toward.
- Interested parties can utilize the dataset to compare with local data to assess and identify local priorities and to set reasonable local level targets to collectively contribute toward the state's overall progress in the five Prevention Agenda Priority Areas.
